I. READING

Simon was fourteen in 2000. He was a student at school in Newcastle. Four years later, he left school and went to London University. He is graduating this June. He's going to work for a famous advertising agency in London. He got this job last year and worked there for three months in the summer. He has had a new flat in New Malden for half a year. New Malden is in the suburbs of southern London. He lived in a student hostel for four years.

The only sport Simon likes is football, so he remembers when France won the World Cup in 1998. Brazil lost in '98 but they won in 2002. Two years ago, Italy (1) ..... the world champion.

Simon remembers that Tony Blair was Prime Minister of the UK in 2000, and Gordon Brown has been Prime Minister since June 2007. Simon is happy that twelve countries in Europe began to use the Euro in 2002, but Britain, Denmark and Sweden didn't.

Ten new countries joined European on 1 May 2004. Poland (2) ..... a member since then. Bulgaria and Rumania became members on 1 January 2007. The next countries that began to use the Euro were Slovenia, Malta and Cyprus.
