

I. READING

People all over the world have ideas about British food – the breakfasts are huge, fish and chips is the national dish, the food is boring. But how true is this? It is true that the traditional English breakfast is quite a large meal. The full traditional English breakfast is fried eggs, bacon, mushrooms, sausages, beans and toast. Not a lot of people eat this every day now. People will usually have a slice of toast and a bowl of cereal.

The British usually have lunch at some time between 12 o'clock and 2 o'clock. This is usually a small meal like a salad or a sandwich. Sandwich shops are very popular in the UK.

Then the evening meal is normally at 6 or 7 o'clock. It is some meat, two kinds of vegetables and potatoes. However, these days people like to cook food from all over the world. There are many cooking shows on the TV, and this helps people to try new things.

When they go out to eat, the British hardly ever have fish and chips. That is usually a take away meal. Indian food is probably the most popular in the UK, but you can find restaurants from all over the world here: Indian, Mexican, Vietnamese, Chinese, Japanese, French, Polish. The British really like trying new types of food when they eat out.

One thing is true. They really do drink lots of tea. The average Brit drinks three cups of tea a day, but many people drink much more than that. Beer is also a national drink, but wine is becoming more popular every year.
